

Water Operators

Who is the most important public health official in your community?

If you are like most people, you take it for granted that when you turn on your tap, safe and clean drinking water will flow out. Keeping that high-quality water flowing is the responsibility of your certified water system operator. How important is their job to your health and the health of your family? Their work of producing and delivering safe water impacts every single person in your community every day. Not all water systems in New Mexico have a certified operator - take some time to find out if yours does, and thank them! It is because of their skill that the United States has the safest drinking water supply in the world.

For more information, visit nmrwa.org.